Carnarvon

A number of children as well as some of the older people in this district have been suffering from an attack of mumps. However, the epidemic seems to be pretty well cleared up.

While the recent heavy rains have somewhat retarded harvesting operations, they have been of immense benefit to the potato and other root crops.

A bright young life went out on Monday, August 2nd, when Miss Helen Rogers passed peacefully away. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family. Those from a distance to attend the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Davis and son, Don; Mrs. A. Kay and son, Lloyd, and little daughter, Madie, and Miss Isobel Chambers, all of Toronto; and Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers and daughter of Belleville.

Miss Myrtle Washburn of Fenelon Falls visited friends here last week.

Mr. Lawrence Wright of Newmarket spent Friday and Saturday of last week with Carnarvon friends.

Mrs. R. J. Doran and two children of Toronto are spending a few days with Mrs. Doran's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Fry.

EXPLANATION

I should like to convey my sincere thanks and gratitude to all friends in Minden and especially to those at South Lake for all kindness shown to me and mine during the illness and death of Mrs. Johnson.

I regret that the service which I had planned was cancelled. Friends and relatives of Mrs. Johnson, knowing of the difficulties under which I was working, and being unable to get in touch with me, made all arrangements in the kindest and quietest manner possible.

I hope my friends will understand that I had no control over the change of plans.

Sincerely
JESSIE WILSON

Boice and Cooper

Family Picnic

Recently a very happy and interesting family picnic was held on the shore of Grass Lake, when the families of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Boice and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooper gathered for an afternoon at Wm. Boice's cottage. Five members of the former family, with members of their families, attended. Wm. J. Boice of West Gullford, I. Wesley Boice of Maple Lake, S. Fred Boice of Kearney, Mrs. Geo. Cooper of West Gullford, Mrs. H. Horsley of West Gullford, Mr. Ernest Boice of Haliburton, Mrs. H. Barnum of Tisdale, Sask., were unable to be present. Of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cooper's family were present: Mrs. W. J. Boice of West Gullford, Mrs. S. Redner of Maple Lake, Mrs. Alf Jones of West Gullford, Mrs. W. Hewitt of Hall's Lake, Mrs. J. Ducon of Lorneville, Mr. John Cooper of West Gullford, and Mr. Ernest Cooper of Maple Lake. About one hundred and twenty were present and all were related in some way. It was decided to make this an annual event and a committee was appointed: Mr. Wm. J. Boice, President; Mr. John Cooper, Vice-Pres.; Mr. Cecil Scott, Secretary; Entertainment Committee: Mrs. W. J. Boice, Mrs. Cecil Scott, Mrs. Andy Sisson and Mrs. Rex Boice.

Farm Briefs

MORE WHEAT YIELDS

CALEDONIA — First threshing results on the farm of Gordon Moore, along the Caledonia highway, one mile north of here, yielded 830 bushels of wheat from an eleven-acre field or 33 bushels to the acre. The weight test was 61 pounds per bushel. In Oneida township, Wesley Peart, 4th line, threshed 280 bushels from nine acres, which is several bushels above the average for the district.

BACON EXPORT SOARING

The total export of bacon to the United Kingdom up to the end of April, 1937, was 21,000,000 pounds more than for the same period in 1936. In addition to exports to the United Kingdom, the United States took double the quantity of bacon in 1937, as compared with 1936, to the end of April. Six million pounds of pork have been taken by the U.S. so far this year against 3,000,000 pounds for the corresponding period in 1936.

UNDER STATE CONTROL

BERLIN — Wheat and rye crops have been brought under government control to safeguard Germany's bread supply. Under a decree of Richard-Walther Darré, the minister of agriculture, in co-operation with Economic Dictator Col. Gen. Herman Goering, all wheat and rye farmers must turn their harvest over to a government grain controller.

HARD-LUCK FARMER

TNFFMAN, SASK., — After several years of crop failure, Sam McKie bought a team of horses this spring to replace animals that died during the winter. Lightning struck and killed the new team as they were grazing in pasture.

EGG HAD FOUR YOLKS

WELLAND, — A pullet owned by Mrs. C. M. Haist, Welland, made her egg-laying debut in style. The five-months-old pullet laid a large egg containing four yolks. It was the first egg the bird laid.

Tennyson wrote "Crossing the Bar" when he was 80 years old.

FIND PIGS CLEANER THAN COWS

AMHERST, MASS., — Pigs are among the cleanest of all animals, according to Victor A. Rice, professor of animal husbandry at Massachusetts State College. "Pigs like to roll in mud to keep themselves warm," he explains. "Pigs have no sweat glands, and this is a process of 'heat radiation' whereby the body temperature of the animal is regulated. They are far cleaner than either horses or cows."

New Brunswick's hay crop is expected to be 20 per cent less than that of last year. Offsetting this is an anticipated bumper grain crop.

THE TURNIP APHID

In connection with the control of the turnip aphid, entomologists advise the planting of two rows of the white turnips in a field of swedes as a "trap" crop for this insect. These aphids, which cause serious injury to young turnip plants through the feeding on the leaves, commonly reach Canadian points in the late summer, but they may be expected earlier this year and probably to cause greater injury. Past experience has shown that this insect prefers white to turnips, and may gather in huge numbers on a small number of white turnip plants, and leaving the planting of a row or two of white turnips in with the main crops attacks the aphids to the "trap" plants so that they can be destroyed easily with soap or dust or by being ploughed under. The turnip aphid or plant lice make themselves apparent in a field through individual plants becoming stunted in growth and sickly in appearance. Purple blotches may appear on the surface of the leaf and these indicate large colonies on the under surface. These infested plants should be pulled and removed at once.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL CROP

SYDNEY, N.S.W., — The National Association of Wool-selling Brokers forecast the 1937-38 wool clip at 3,146,000 bales, of which 82 per cent should be merino and 18 per cent crossbred. Of this total clip, it is estimated that about 2,860,000 bales will be offered for sale through brokers' stores; the amount offered before Christmas, it is predicted, will not exceed 1,500,000 bales. On an estimated average weight of 300 pounds avoirdupois, the new clip will run at 943,800,000 pounds.

At The Turn of the Road
At the turn of the road is a picture that comes to my mind like a dream,

'Tis the little white house of my neighbor that stands by the side of the stream.
By a stream where the slow gentle current is fringed by a border of trees,
That send out their soft lazy shadows and shelter the birds in their leaves.

'Tis there that the roses of Junetime reach beauty that cannot be told, And there in the home of my neighbor are comforts far better than gold.

So over and over the picture that I see of that little abode, Will bring to me thoughts of my neighbor and his home at the turn of the road.

The average man cannot stand prosperity, we are told. Which is probably the reason the average man doesn't have to.

"We're No Weaker Sex," Says Woman North Woods Guide

Indian Squaws Did Most of the Paddling in the Old Days While Warriors Watched

ELY, Minn.—Milady may have the services of doctors and lawyers of her own sex and now, should she like to rough it a bit, she may utilize a woman woods guide.

But she must make her appointment far in advance for Marie Sarkipato says business is so good that bookings run into September.

The comely young woman, who is blond and 19, obtained her training early. Her father, Otto Sarkipato, operated a boat livery on Shagawa Lake, where Marie was born, for more than 20 years.

That is responsible for the young lady's training. While attending high school, Miss Sarkipato won the state breast stroke swimming championship.

Miss Sarkipato (she pronounced it Sar-kee-pato) caters exclusively to women, although she has guided couples through the border lakes canoe routes. These trips often keep her in the wilds two weeks at a time.

Strange, this woman guide business?

"Certainly not," snapped Miss Sarkipato. "We're no weaker sex. Indian squaws did most of the paddling and packing in the old days while the warriors fondled their shooting irons and watched for wild animals and the enemy."

Stenographers

It is certain that the most impressive single feature of a great many business offices is the stenographer. She is certain to be trim, alert and business-like, and she is more than likely to be very good to look at; and in any case she shares with such diverse professionals as trained nurses, printers, aviators and steamship captains an air of cool, unemotional competence — sure harbinger that any incoming job will be handled capably and without fuss. Instal a man in an office with such a divine creature at his beck and call and what happens? He immediately, and inevitably, becomes a great letter-writer. He could not do less, if he has a heart.

Publicly Whipped

Marshal Edward Carpenter, of Powhatan, Ohio, has an idea as to how to keep down the amount of juvenile delinquency in his village. It has proven successful, and has secured the approval of a pastor, a probate judge and the mayor.

Briefly, the Marshal's plan is to publicly whip young offenders in the public square, so that any, or all, of the 2,500 inhabitants can attend and see the punishment administered. It has been given to 21 youngsters who were caught playing hooky from the school, and they have been taught their lesson. Marshal Carpenter declares that he is going to follow the practice as long as he is in office.

While public whippings may become something of exhibitions, there is little doubt but that the idea will have a good effect on the victims. Not only does a whipping of such nature hurt a boy physically, but it hurts his ego. No boy likes to be the laughing stock of other boys, or to have to cry out in their presence. So the youth of the town of Powhatan are cutting out the illegal capers. — Windsor Star.

Our National Anthem

A new stanza for either "God Save the King," or "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was sung on the Canada-U.S. international boundary line the other day by delegates attending the Pan-Pacific Women's Conference in Vancouver. It went like this:

"Two Empires by the sea,
Two nations great and free,
One anthem raise,
One race of ancient fame,
One tongue, one faith we claim,
One God, one glorious name
We love and praise."

The addition admirably expresses the closely allied ideals and aspirations of Canada and the United States and embodies a worthy and, indeed, a noble sentiment. — Brantford Expositor.

Child Brides in Ontario

We are accustomed to raise our hands in something approaching holy horror when we read of child brides in different parts of the United States. But the annual report of the Registrar General for Ontario just to hand also shows that the exceptionally youthful wife is by no means a rarity in this part of the world.

This report shows that in the year 1935 there were no fewer than 111 girls under the age of 16 who contracted matrimony in Ontario. Four of these were married to boys under 18 years of age and two of them were united with men of 38 years of age.

There were 352 brides of the age of 16, 775 of the age of 17, and 2,175 of the age of 18. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

"Not-Over-50"

"Join the Not-Over-50 Club" is the appeal featured in a series of small advertisements appearing in the Beacon-Herald. Members receive an emblem to paste on a rear window of the car, and a little red arrow, bearing the warning "Not-Over-50," to be placed opposite the 50 mark on the automobile speedometer. It is a good idea

If every motorist pledged himself not to exceed a speed of 50 miles per hour on the highway, our accident score certainly would drop. — Stratford Beacon Herald.

The Value of Trees

The most important factor in improving forest conditions in any community is the private individual. He must have a realization that the presence of trees in any form is beneficial to his property. This can be demonstrated in town and country alike by the planting of individual trees all around buildings, on the lawn, a country lane and on the roadside. For the protection of farm property windbreaks of evergreen species such as spruce, pine or cedar, may be planted. Such windbreaks will have a beneficial effect on crops, particularly fall wheat, and will give a splendid protection in the winter to farm buildings and in this way lessen the amount of fuel used. If the farm property has no woodlot, in addition to planting windbreaks, to set out a few acres of trees particularly on areas of the farm that are not well suited to agriculture such as steep hillsides, rocky areas or sections of the property cut off by the streams, railroads or highways. — Belleville Intelligencer.

Good in Science

The second flight of the Russian air men from Moscow to the United States within the space of a few weeks has brought about some conjectures as to just what it proves.

There are those who see proof that Russia is merely perfecting another war weapon against anyone within a 6,000-mile radius of Moscow. Others see the aviation horizon vastly widened, with scientific benefits to all who are interested in flying, as well as a better understanding between nations.

Brazil demonstrated the first attitude two years ago when it refused the Russians the privilege of terminating a long distance flight in Pernambuco. But it seems that the United States and Canada, in lending whatever aid was deemed necessary to make the flights a success, have set a better example. — Kitchener Record.

Said It First

It was J. T. Clark who wrote in the late nineties that the twentieth century was to be Canada's century. The saying has frequently been credited to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and no doubt he, too, used it; but the original prophecy was Clark's. — Toronto Star.

Life and Income

The average doctor has a working life of 42 years and the present value of his earnings is $108,000. Next is the lawyer with $105,000 in 43 years. The engineer earns $93,000 and the architect $62,500. The college teacher and the clergyman, both of whom average 44 years, obtain $69,000 and $41,000 respectively; while the worker in the skilled trades with the same working life span only makes $28,600. Averaging 40 years, the lowest of all the groups, the nurse earns $23,300. In 46 years the journalist with $41,500 does a little better than the clergyman. The unskilled laborer averages 44 years of work to make $15,200. The highest in average working years, each at 51, the farmer earns $12,500 and the farm worker $10,400, the two lowest amounts of the sixteen groups. — The Kingston Whig Standard.

Forest Conservation

A most valuable asset is being rapidly used up, and its one that cannot be replaced except over a long period of time. Succeeding generations may have cause to lament the prodigality of preceding ones unless a plan of progressive reforestation is adopted. Our spruce and fir grows as rapidly as in any other country, but it takes a long time for nature to make a saw-log. The time for a vigorous conservation policy is now. — St. John Times-Globe.

No Danger Present

A new comet is rushing towards the earth, but as it is computed that it will not come nearer than fifty million miles there is no need for this globe to become even more jittery than at present. — Brantford Expositor.

THE EMPIRE

Empire Trade

Nowadays, while an insane "race of armaments" is proceeding in many of our lands, it is comforting to reflect that no part of the British territories today is arming against its neighbour. Moreover, there has been a definite effort made, following the Ottawa Conference, to place trade within the Empire on a co-ordinated footing. Exaggerated views are held in some of the quarters as to what was done at Ottawa. Britain and her Dominions continue to make purchases of the products of foreign countries worth many millions each year. In fact, we are the best customers of many such nations, who would otherwise suffer much more severely than they do from the lofty walls of trade restrictions built up by their neighbours. There is, indeed, still room for an extension of the principle of Imperial Preference to a very considerable extent, without adopting an exclusive attitude towards imports from lands outside the Empire. A policy of the latter kind would be suicidal for a country like Britain, but there are other ways of dealing with the needs of the economic situation. — Belfast Telegraph.

Britain's Limits

It is possibly true that Britain will find that in practice she cannot keep out of Europe. But she can, and she should, avoid too definitely taking sides. If the present commitment to France, which at least has the merit of being reciprocal, is to be made permanent, it must be framed with care. It may be worth Britain's while to guarantee France against unprovoked aggression. But that ought to be the limit of British commitments on the continent. It can never profit this country (or advance peace in Europe) to underwrite the security of France against all eventualities. For France can all too easily become involved in a European war as a result of her own commitments in Eastern Europe. Reconciliation between France and Germany is the key to a solution of at least half of Europe's present trouble. And in her satisfaction at an alliance with this country France would be only too likely to throw away the key, or at least mislay it while it was still useful. — Glasgow Herald.

"No panacea will cure all our troubles. We must deal with each separate question in the most practical way open to us."

—Prince Konoye.

"Theories have no place in our scheme of things."

—Adolf Hitler.

News In Brief

British Group Accepts Abitibi Plan

TORONTO. — A spokesman for the Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Bondholders' Representative Committee states that their official organization plan has been approved by a committee of the Association of British Investment Trusts. This committee was appointed to watch the interests of the association in the Abitibi reorganization. The spokesman understands that more than $4 millions par value of the first mortgage bonds are held by this group.

Eden Nominated for Nobel Prize

LONDON. — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's efforts to keep Great Britain at peace at almost any price are about to receive the highest recognition available such diplomacy — nomination for the Nobel peace prize. Capt Eden's sponsor is not Benito Mussolini, Adolf Hitler, or the Spanish combatants, to whom he has so often turned a charitably blind eye and, when necessary, the other cheek, but the Norwegians.

U. S. Corn Crop Best Since 1929

CHICAGO. — A corn crop valued at $1,750,000,000, the biggest money crop United States farmers have had since 1929, was ripening in the corn belt, the August estimates of six Chicago grain experts indicated this week.

Basing their estimates on reports from farmers throughout the producing area and on the latest official acreage figures, the private crop authorities here, most of whom have just returned from personal field inspection trips, forecast 1937 domestic corn production would total 2,771,000,000 bushels.

This would be the biggest United States crop since the record-breaking harvest in 1932 of 2,926,000,000 bushels. It would be more than a billion bushels larger than the crop of 1,524,317,000 harvested in 1936.

The estimates of the private authorities ranged from 2,715,000,000 bushels to 2,834,000,000 but the average was 2,771,000,000. This represents an increase of 200,000,000 bushels compared with the latest Government figures based on conditions as of July 1.

Dies After Claiming Huge Fortune

MELBOURNE, Australia. — Mrs. A. Houston a claimant to the estimated $24,893,750 estate left by the late Lady Houston in England, died this week. Mrs. Houston was an elderly woman in poor circumstances. She advanced her claim only three days previously on the grounds that her husband, George Muir Houston, was a nephew of Sir Robert Houston, who amassed the huge fortune in shipping.

How Indians Should Be Treated

WINNIPEG. — Grey Owl, well-known Prince Albert naturalist, is advocating a new attitude towards Indians. He said "Treat the Indian as an Indian and don't try to change him. My suggestion would be that the Indians be put to work conserving wild life. There's nothing left to hunt, so they can't live hunting and trapping as they used to do, but they could conserve what animal life there is left," he said.

C. N. Revenue Up 10 Millions

VANCOUVER. — President S. J. Hungerford of Canadian National Railways estimated in an address to Vancouver Board of Trade this week that operating revenues of the C.N.R. system during the seven months of 1937 have been $10,000,000 more than in the same period last year.

Mr. Hungerford said he was "anticipating the actual figures a little," but he also estimated net operating revenue had been about $4,500,000 above the corresponding period of 1936.

The C.N.R. President on a tour of inspection of the railway system, said the railway directors had looked forward to a continuation of these revenue increases, but now "it seems certain that on our Western lines which have been built and equipped to handle a very large volume of wheat tonnage, the amount of wheat which we will have to move in this year's crop season will be far less than could have been anticipated."

Health Record

Toronto in 1936 had only one real death of typhoid fever; one of measles; one of infantile paralysis; two of diphtheria; none of smallpox. Diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid, those once-great scourges, are yielding to toxoid, vaccination and the purification of water and milk supplies. Tuberculosis is also coming under control. Including the deaths of Toronto people in sanatoria, the tuberculosis victims in 1936 numbered 275. If the pre-war rate had been in effect, they would have numbered 742.

Record Number of Farm Jobs

OTTAWA. — Reporting the best farm placement record ever experienced at the Government employment office, George Hamilton, superintendent has told The Journal that 275 men had been sent to good farm jobs during the month of July.

"It was an exceptionally good month and I am very pleased," Mr. Hamilton said. He estimated the men placed would have work of varying periods, probably until the end of August.

The wages being paid to the men range from $25 to $30 and keep, with many farmers offering the straight one dollar a day.

Bride First Time at 78

LOS ANGELES. — Annie M. Cotton, 78, "can hardly wait" until Friday to marry John E. Scott, 79. That's what she said when they drove up to the marriage license bureau and wrote out an application at the curb because of their infirmity. It will be Miss Cotton's first wedding, the fourth for Scott.

Rattlesnake Killed at Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. — Four men walking in the Niagara Glen came across a four-foot rattlesnake with three rattles and killed it after a short skirmish. Bruce Hunt, John Disher and his son Engin and Norman Irvine, all of Niagara Falls were walking in the Glen when Hunt, at the rear of the party, heard a noise about his head. Hunt turned his flashlight up and saw the snake coiled on a ledge above his head. He shouted to his companions, who aided him in killing it.

Lindbergh Passes Unnoticed

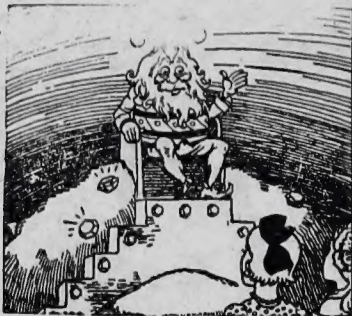

PARIS. — Interrupting a flight to England, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget Airfield to thank the commander for radio advice given him on recent flights around Europe. His visit to the field, where he completed his trail-blazing trans-Atlantic flight 10 years ago, went unnoticed for half an hour. He was on his way home after a week-end with Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom he invented the "artificial heart," at Dr. Carrel's home on St. Gildas Island off the coast of Brittany.

Queen Mary's Brother Visits Duke

THE WONDERLAND OF OZ

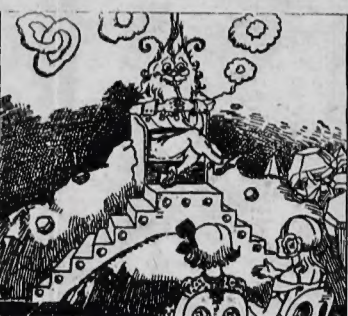

By L. Frank Baum

"Isn't it a trick?" asked the Tin Woodman, anxiously. "Never mind," replied Ozma, reassuringly, "we came here to rescue the poor Queen of Ev and her children, and we must run some risks to do so." "The Gnome King is said to be honest and good-natured," remarked Tiktok. "You can trust him to do what is right."

So Ozma and Dorothy led the way. They passed through the rock doorway and entered a long passage which was lighted by jewels set in the walls with lamps behind them. There was no one to escort them or to show them the way, but all the party pressed through the passage until they came to a round domed cavern.

The room was bare, save for a throne carved out of a solid boulder of rock. It was rude and rugged in shape but it glittered with great rubies and diamonds and emeralds on every part of its surface. And upon this throne sat the Gnome King clothed in gray-brown garments that were the exact color of the throne in which he sat.

He wore no crown of any sort, and his only ornament was a broad, jewel-studded belt that encircled his fat little body. As for his features, they seemed kindly and good-humored, and his eyes were turned merrily upon his visitors as Ozma and Dorothy stood before him with their followers ranged behind them. "He looks like Santa Claus," whispered Dorothy.

Have You Ever Saved a Life?

Years of training and years of experience lie behind the deft strokes of the great surgeon's knife, as he performs a delicate operation. Life and death are in the balance. Loved ones tremble in apprehension. Finally, after anxious hours,—Success! The supreme ability of one man in a million has saved another life.

Most of us can never save a life that way. The surgeon's skill is not ours. But by preventing accidents on streets and highways, everyone of us, whether we are drivers or pedestrians, can just surely save lives and safeguard our fellow men against crippling or fatal injuries.

We can teach our children the enduring principles of safe driving and safe walking—of safe living. We can correct the unsafe practices of our own driving and walking. We can uphold the authority of our public officials in impartial and effective law enforcement. We can help in organized efforts to spread the gospel of traffic safety to everybody. And, most of all, we can resolve in our own minds to perform no act dangerous to others or ourselves.

Great skill and long training are not needed for this kind of life saving. What we do need—all of us—is a new realization that "I AM my brother's keeper." Will you accept your personal share of this great responsibility? Will you help stem the tide of blood and death that promises to sweep Ontario's streets and highways? Will you SAVE A LIFE?

ART OF EMBALMING

EMBALMING is an art for the purpose of sanitizing and preservation of our dead bodies.

This is not attained by merely hanging our diploma on the wall, but by a thorough training in theory and practical work, and not accomplished in a few days or weeks but by a lengthy course under trained instructors. There is no partial treatment to accomplish this art. The restorative art is also used in bringing out the life-like features and requires expert training to administer same.

Don't be fooled by those who claim the accomplishment of this art, who have never had the necessary training.

OBITUARY

HELEN ELAINE ROGERS

Once more beneath the whispering pines, in the little cemetery, beside the beautiful waters of Twelve Mile Lake, in the little plot wherein already sleeping lies a loving father and a little brother, we laid to rest another of our community.

Helen Elaine Rogers was born in Carnarvon Sept. 6, 1920, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Wm. E. Rogers and the late Wm. Rogers. Surely it must have been qualities inherited from a fine true Christian mother, combined with those inherited from a father, who was loved as far as he was known, that made Helen the young woman she was. Always the same—at home, at school, at play—there never failed to radiate from her, sunshine which brightened even the darkest corners. But over and above all these qualities was one which dominated all else—her faith in God. Some three years ago at the age of 14, when, as a rule, young people's minds are filled with glamour of other things she gave her all to Christ, and from that day until her death she never failed to witness for her Lord.

Is it any wonder that the message brought to her funeral service by a friend of the family, the Rev. W. J. Anderson of Toronto, rang with a note of victory, and that faces wet with tears glowed with a glorious light of the hope of the resurrection to come. Assisting the Rev. Anderson at the funeral service was another close friend of the family, the Rev. John Wilkinson of Warsaw.

The pallbearers were five cousins of the deceased, Douglas Brown, Lloyd Kay, Murray Chambers, Frank Chambers, Tom Rogers and a friend, Wilfred Mason. A wealth of flowers covered the mound at the graveside.

A beautiful duet was rendered by two of the Rev. Anderson's daughters. The hymn was well chosen as it was one that Helen had often wished would be her last message to the girls with whom she had played and grown up in the community. The hymn was "I am a Stranger in a Foreign Land Today."

Thus have we laid away another from our midst. Beside the father and brother she will rest, while only just a little step away another fresh mound marks the place where only a few days preceding, an uncle, Mr. Albert Kay, was laid away. And over all, the murmuring pines keep watch, shedding from time to time their soft pine needles upon their places. What stories they can tell of broken hearts, of empty chairs beside the fireplaces, of blasted hopes, of fears; and yet what greater stories they will tell when that first Resurrection comes when graves shall open and the "Dead in Christ shall rise." What joy there be, and then, what sadness too, for some shall never rise until the second resurrection comes with judgment.

God has her in his keeping now, Angels attend her through the day; Never her feet shall go astray, Never shall anguish line her brow, Never a bitter thought shall find Harsh lodgement in her gentle mind. Lovely her girlhood shall remain, Safe from the hurt of time and pain. We rise to greater heights Beneath the lash and rod; These troubled days and nights Nearer draw us to God.

DIED

JOHNSTON—At South Lake, Minden, Friday, August 6th, Lila Veitch, widow of the late William Johnston.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. W. E. Rogers, Carnarvon, and family wish to express their sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy at the time of their bereavement.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON VII. GOD GIVES LAW TO A NATION (Exodus 19: 1-20; 21.

Printed Text—Exodus 20: 1-17.
Golden Text—Thou shalt love the Lord with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matt. 22: 37, 39.

The Lesson in its Setting
Place—Mount Sinai.
Time—B.C. 1498.

"And God spake all these words, saying, I am Jehovah thy God, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage."—Two fundamental reasons for Israel's obedience to the law about to be given are here announced; the one who gives the law is none other than Jehovah and God, Jehovah meaning "the one who is," i.e., the eternal one; this redeemed the Israelites out of the house of bondage, and consequently had a claim upon them for their gratitude and obedience.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me."—This commandment is a direct prohibition of every form of worship which does not have for its object the Jehovah of the Old Testament, who is the Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and strikes at the very root of all polytheism, and of every ancient and modern religion and cult which exhorts to a place of worship either a mythological god or goddess, or an actual human being. There cannot be two gods.

"Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image, nor any likeness of any thing that is in Heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them; for I Jehovah, thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, upon the third and upon the fourth generation of them that hate me.

"And showing lovingkindness unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments."—As the First Commandment forbade any other being to be worshipped as God, the Second Commandment forbids the making of any images of God or of other creatures to worship and serve.

"Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God in vain; for Jehovah will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."—The word "vain" means "empty," "without reality," and, by taking the name of God in vain, not only is all profanity which uses his name here condemned, but all acts and words of men who pretend to be solemnly worshipping God, while their hearts are far from him.

"Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work. But the seventh day is a Sabbath unto Jehovah thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates.

"For in six days Jehovah made Heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore Jehovah blessed the Sabbath day, and hallowed it."—The word "Sabbath" means, literally, cessation, and, consequently, rest. While the word itself does not appear in the Bible until Ex. 16: 23-29, the idea of the Sabbath is revealed in the story of creation (see Gen. 2: 1-3). For other important references, see Ex. 31: 13-16; Lev. 19:

3, 30; Deut. 5: 12-15; Isa. 58: 13; Jer. 17: 21-27.

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee."—The meaning of the word "honor" is—"to attach weight to; to put in the place of superiority; to hold in high opinion; to reverence, in the best sense of that word." "To the child who is not yet of age to think, to plan, to will, honoring of parents consists in subjection, obedience implicitly and gladly rendered. This, like every law of God, is for the child a gracious and yet imperative requirement.

"Thou shalt not kill."—This and the next three commandments have to do with life, purity, property, and reputation. The command not to take another life naturally stands at the beginning of a series of laws dealing with human relationships.

"Thou shalt not commit adultery."—Strictly speaking, adultery is violation of the marriage vow on the part of either husband or wife, while the accurate term for sexual relationships outside of the marriage state is fornication. Both of them and all sins of every form involved in these certainly come within the scope of the Seventh Commandment.

Impurity is probably the most terrible curse in our modern Western civilization, and it is getting darker, and deeper, and more prevalent. Our vicious movies have a great deal to do with the careless, indifferent, almost smart attitude which our present generation is taking toward sexual sins. No man can treasure evil thoughts and let them remain in his heart. They are like the plant which starts in the recesses of your porch, which presently begins to creep out into the light. No man can think foul thoughts, no man can meditate on things that are unworthy without paying the price for it in his manhood. Keep pure associations. There are evil-minded friends who love to spew out upon their suggestions. Against them we can only erect the barrier of aggressive purity.

"Thou shalt not steal."—Underhand dealing was the besetting sin of the Hebrew. It is exemplified in the early days in the character of the national ancestor, Jacob. It is the constant cry in the social teachings of the prophets—Hosea, Amos, Isaiah, and Micah.

"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."—To bear false witness is to make a public statement before one or more persons concerning another in such a way as to deliberately utter a falsehood about that person or persons.

"Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's."—The improper desire is the root of all evil. It can seldom be reached by human legislation. But it is open to the Searcher of hearts. The intent is that which, in the last resort, determines the moral character of the act. This last 'word,' is, therefore, the interpreting clause of the whole Decalogue (Rom. 7:7). Covetousness here includes envy, malice, and every other selfish or disinterestedness, but of all forms of unselfish benevolence. This commandment is, therefore, virtually the law of love, and in this positive sense gives that loftier aspect to the Decalogue, the traces of which have been already noticed.

Educated Sneezes

From Dr. Beno Paul, pioneer European allergist, comes the news that "only cultured people, in general, have hay fever and other allergic diseases." Such maladies, he says, seem to be transmitted in certain social groups; city people, for instance, apparently being more susceptible than country folk.

What benefits humanity will derive from these data are not immediately discernable. There is a hazy suggestion of some circuitous connection between people who study, and the "genus bookworm."

Probably Dr. Paul has some real foundation for his belief, but until it is clarified, its only good may be to stimulate the urge to carry a thing to its logical conclusion. In line with that then, we might hope for the emergence at last of that long-sought and too often burlesqued phenomenon—the educated sneeze.—Kitchener Record.

Deepest Oil Well

The deepest oil well in the world, and the only one that goes lower than 12,000 feet, is McElroy No. 103, in Crane County, Texas. It is 12,786 feet deep and cost just over $500,000 to bore. The temperature increased one degree for every fifty feet bored, and at 10,000 feet the bit revolved away at 200 revolutions a minute at a temperature of boiling water!

According to Professor L. C. Uren, oil at that depth exists not in liquid form but as vapour. The tubes that are sunk into the earth when wells are bored must be of the finest steel and those used at a depth of more than two miles must possess a tensile strength of more than 95,000 lbs. per square inch!

Everything goes in cycles in motion pictures, and just now the Russian cycle threatens to monopolize the screen. No less than three of the most fascinating screen sirens are currently holding forth in the midst of Russian magnificence.

There is Marlene Dietrich with Robert Donat, in "Without Arms," for instance, Miss Dietrich and Robert Donat make a thrilling romantic pair. Another of the Russian cycle is "The Emperor's Candlesticks" in which Luise Rainer and William Powell appear as rival spies of Russia and Poland. Last, but by no means least, particularly for music lovers, is "Two Who Dared" with Anna Sten, who has been too long absent from our screens.

Rudy Vallee spends many of his evenings nowadays at a night club in New York where his friend, Jackie Osterman is making a comeback after a long stretch of hard luck. Vallee is a great story teller, and one of his favorites concerns Jack Benny. Vallee wholeheartedly admires the drastic way in which Jack Benny treated a hostile vaudeville audience years ago. Benny came out on one side of the stage merrily saying "Hello folks," only to face a bunch of tough-looking ruffians who glowered at him. Continuing right on across the stage, he exited from the stage, saying "Good-by folks," and walked right on out of the theatre never to return.

Martha Raye made the hit of her life and smashed all box-office records making personal appearances at the Paramount Theatre in New York recently. The audience simply could not get enough of her. They surged down to the footlights when her act was over, shot questions at her, begged her to sing one more song, and then just stood and yelled when her voice threatened to give out.

THE CHINA STAR

By JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Hugh Morley, U. S. Secret Service agent, is aboard the China Star, bound from Shanghai for San Francisco, to guard one John B. Ellis, believed to be Eli J. Brandon, international financier, and said to be in danger—either from radicals, because of a trade pact he recently signed in the Orient, or from jewel thieves. Morley is attracted to the lovely Sylvia Ames, who is Ellis' Secretary. Other passengers include the over-inquisitive Phil Lon; the belligerent Richard Stell and his sister, Rennie; and Carl Van Doering, wealthy young sportsman. One afternoon, Ellis is slugged by a man in a black hood. A little later, Van Doering is also attacked. That night, a man is seen snooping near Ellis' suite. He is chased and escapes—but drops a small camera. It belongs to Wong Phil Lon.

CHAPTER IX

Benson stared at Morley.

"But what would Phil Lon be doing with a camera at night in a storm?"

"That's exactly what I intend asking him, if we can find him. Purser, have a search made."

They went to the purser's office, threw off their oilskins, and examined the camera more closely.

"One lens is cracked," said Morley. "Looks as though it got a hard rap when it struck deck."

What, as Benson had asked, had Lon been doing with a camera on deck at such a time? And why had he been loitering about the door to John Ellis' suite? Morley scowled at the camera thoughtfully.

Suddenly, his scowl vanished. "I've got it! Lon knows that John Ellis is Eli J. Brandon, and he wanted to photograph the copy of the trade pact that Ellis undoubtedly has with him."

"But why?"

Morley shook his head. "I don't know—but I'm going to find out. It may be that Lon represents some country or organization affected by that pact, and that it is of vital importance that they know the details of it. All of Brandon's agreements are secret in detail. I'm going up to the radio room. I want to get a message off immediately."

Morley's message was sent to the San Francisco office of the Secret Service. It asked if that office had any information about one Wong Phil Lon.

After dispatching it, he went to his stateroom. A few minutes later, there came a soft knock on the door.

He opened it to find Rennie Stell in the passageway.

"Hugh," she said tensely, "don't ask any questions, but can you come with me—please?" Her face showed ill-suppressed excitement.

Wondering, Morley permitted her to take his hand and lead him along the passageway. She led him to the lounge and across it to a tiny alcove where there was solitude behind a group of potted palms.

"Why all the mystery?" he demanded.

"I have something to show you. Hugh, I don't want anything to happen."

He frowned. "What could happen? And why?"

She pulled him about. "Stand with your back to the lounge. That's it. I want you to shield me from prying eyes. Now look—"

She pulled a piece of black silk from the bosom of her dress, and let it unfold. It was a small sack, with two holes, the size of a quarter, cut in it.

Morley grabbed it, rolled it into a ball, and thrust it into his pocket.

"It's the gunman's hood! Where did you get it?"

"It was behind the fire extinguisher in the passageway—just outside my room," she told him.

He glanced across the lounge—saw Sylvia and Van Doering conversing with Stell.

"Come along," he said to Rennie. He strode across the room to the group.

"Hello, folks," he said. "I thought you might be interested to learn that the mask the mystery man wore has turned up."

Van Doering looked at him sharply. "The mask? Where did you find it?"

Stell was smiling, but his smile was set and mechanical.

"You're quite a detective, Morley," he said.

Rennie slipped her arm through Morley's.

"I found it," she said, "in the passageway outside my room. I'm getting to be quite a detective, too, don't you think?"

Van Doering was studying Morley with narrowed eyes.

"Mr. Morley," he said suddenly, "just why are you taking such an interest in all this mystery? What is it to you?"

Morley suddenly decided to broadcast his identity. He'd give them a surprise.

"My interest is Uncle Sam's interest. I am a government officer. There is concern over John Ellis' safety. That is my interest in the affair."

Van Doering and Stell exchanged glances.

"Well! Something really is happening!" exclaimed Van Doering.

Morley nodded and swung on his heel. He had seen Benson across the room.

The purser shook his head as Morley approached.

"We've searched the ship," he said. "No trace of Lon."

Morley was disappointed. "Well, I suppose there's nothing more we can do for the present. But he'll have to turn up eventually."

He said good-night to the purser and returned to his stateroom.

Morley made sure that there was a full slip of bullets in his automatic before he retired that night. He laid the gun on the stand beside the bed before switching off the lights.

He could not sleep, kept turning and tossing, his nerves taut, his mind working furiously. At last, he was just dropping off, when—

A woman's scream shattered the stillness. Morley, jerked wide awake, went cold. One horror-niled thought flashed through his head. It might be Sylvia!

He leaped out of bed, grabbing his automatic. In a split second, he was at the door, tearing it open.

Down the passageway, he saw Sylvia struggling to slip out of the grasp of a man in a black hood who was half dragging, half carrying her toward the doorway at the end of the passage. Morley shouted, jerking up his gun, but he dared not shoot for fear of hitting Sylvia.

He lunged forward. The man half turned, a gun in his hand. A burst of flame and sound filled the narrow passage. Morley heard the bullet splinter the wood panelling beside him. He pressed against the wall. Another shot roared.

Then the door at the end of the passage slammed.

The Perfect Sandwich

Some foods seem to be just right for sandwiches—and cheese is one of them. Cheese sandwiches are, with out doubt, the most popular and most practical way to serve cheese. It is a good idea, and an easy matter to vary the sandwiches by making use of the many cheese fillings which can be so quickly and economically prepared. For tasty and nourishing sandwiches, blend cheese—either grated Canadian cheddar, processed, cottage or cream—with salad dressing, and add chopped green pepper, green onions, pimiento, nuts, pickles, olives or celery. Use a generous amount of filling with brown or white bread cut to suit the occasion—in other words, not too thin, or, for a change, use the filling in buttered tea biscuits or rolls.

Another suggestion is to serve plain buttered bread or rolls in place of the sandwiches and make cheese a part of the salad by combining grated cheese with the other ingredients, or by serving a cheese dressing with the salad. For the dressing blend together equal parts of grated Canadian cheddar cheese, processed, cream or cottage cheese with salad dressing, folding in whipped cream if desired. Small balls of cottage or cream cheese, slices of Canadian cheddar or processed cheese, large prunes or celery stocks stuffed with a cheese mixture will add flavor and good value to the picnic salad plate. And speaking of salads, keep in mind that cucumbers, tomatoes, celery, asparagus, pineapple, peaches and pears are especially accompaniment.

Raspberry Cream Pie

One baked shell, one and three-fourths cups scalded milk, three tablespoons flour, three tablespoons cornstarch, two-thirds cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two egg yolks, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup cream, whipped; one-half cup fresh raspberries. Prepare baked shell, and you will find it easier to bake it on the back of the same size. Scald milk. Mix flour, cornstarch, sugar, salt. Add hot milk to them slowly, stirring it in carefully to prevent lumping. Return all to double boiler. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly at first until the filling is thickened and smooth. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally until flour and cornstarch are thoroughly cooked (taste to make certain no raw starch taste remains).

Beat egg yolks, add a portion of the hot mixture to them, stirring it in slowly. Return all to double boiler and cook two minutes longer. Remove from heat. Let stand until lukewarm. Add vanilla. Whip cream and fold it in. Fold in raspberries also, if desired, or they may be sprinkled over the top. Turn into baked shell. Top with additional whipped cream or with an egg meringue, using the two egg whites. Beat them to a stiff froth and add one-fourth cup sugar gradually, beating it in by the tablespoonful. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit until delicately browned.

Home Kinks

A problem that puzzles many, especially apartment dwellers with uninteresting oblong rooms and "institution" glass windows forming one end, says Mrs. Edna H. Kern, interior decorator, is changing the room shape and dressing up the bleak emptiness of the window expanse.

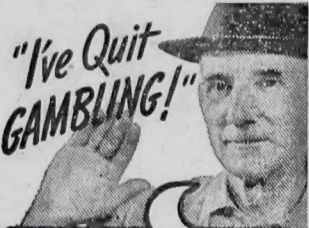

A beaver board or wooden partition with a high centre doorway arch and, if the width is sufficient, two smaller arches on either side, placed about 20 inches from the window, gives a delightful balcony effect. Plants placed between the actual window and the partition make the balcony appearance even more realistic, and the arches can be draped just as they would be if they actually did lead out onto a balcony. The expense entailed for a beaver board partition of this kind is very small, and the transformation of an uninterestingly shaped room is little short of miraculous. The partition, of course can be painted or papered to blend with the other walls.

Curdling Tomato Soup

How many times we have all had our cream of tomato soup curdle. The trouble lies in adding the tomatoes slowly to the heated milk. Not in adding just the first portion slowly, but adding all slowly and stirring it carefully. However, if there are too many tomatoes, no matter how slowly they are stirred into the milk, curdling will result.

They Were Laughed At

Mr. H. G. Wells says he is hopeful for the peace of the world. It is to be hoped that Mr. Wells is on sound ground in his belief.

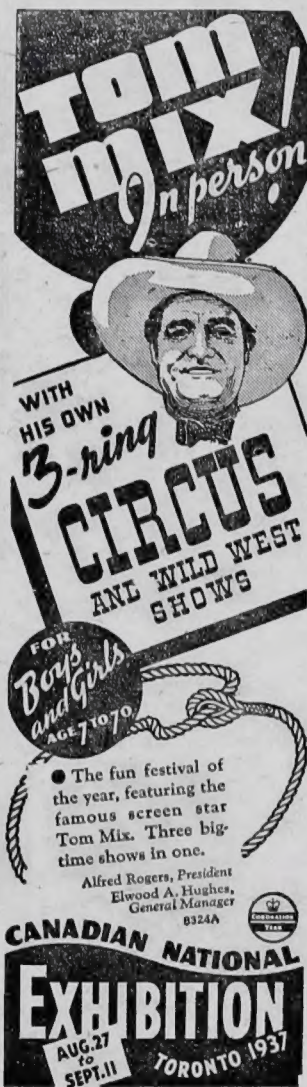

It was Mr. Wells who wrote "The War in the Air" just a little after the end of the war in South Africa. It was Mr. Wells who visualized aircraft dropping bombs in the Strand, in Trafalgar Square, who told us about "Bert" and "Albert" who found themselves in a great German aeronautical park—and what happened to them.

But it was Mr. Wells, like Norman Angell—now Sir Norman Angell—who was laughed at in those days prior to 1914. "The War in the Air" and "The Great Illusion" almost look like back numbers now.

How prophetic those two pre-war books were!

Careless Pedestrians

An educational campaign might well be undertaken to make the pedestrian more careful in crossing street and highway. As a rule, young pedestrians are much more careful where motor vehicles are concerned than are their elders. Because of the repeated admonitions of parents and teachers, the young have learned to stop and look. Education thus plays a part in promoting highway safety. It may not reach some careless adult pedestrians, but it should be emphasized and intensified among the young who will constitute all the pedestrians of tomorrow.

Coconut Tree of CeylonMainstay of the Natives

In Ceylon, we claim that the coconut tree is the most useful tree in the world, states a correspondent in Pearson's Weekly. The coconut palm has been established in the island for hundreds of years. Each palm yields from 40 to 100 nuts a year for 70 or 80 years. Copra comes from the dried kernel, and is exported in large quantities for the manufacture of margarine and soap, etc., and desiccated coconut, coconut oil, and coir-fiber, made from the husks of the nuts, are also exported.

But to the Ceylon villager, his coconut trees are not merely his source of income, but his mainstay.

With the wood he builds his hut, and his fishing boat is a trunk hollowed out. His simple furniture is made from the same wood, and his drinking cup is a coconut shell. His lamp is a shell filled with coconut oil, the mat on which he sleeps, his broom and his ropes are made of coir-fiber.

The fresh juice of the young nuts forms his drink, and the soft kernel gives him a staple dish; it's a delicious, jelly-like substance.

Grated coconut ekes out his meal of rice, and from the coconut flowers are made arrack and toddy, potent spirits, much appreciated at village festivals. Jaggery, a kind of brown sugar, is made from the juice of the trunk. The beautiful cream-colored blossom, and the tender young leaves are used in every form of decoration in this land of sunshine.

Pine Tree Is Classed as Favorite of the Forests

There is something knightly about a pine tree. It raises itself on sturdy trunk into the atmosphere, great arms sweeping the air, and shoulders its stalwart bulk against the elements. It can be among the most quiet of trees, producing an utter forest stillness, a breathless hush, or, when roused, among the most tempestuous. It is a communal tree, observes a writer in the Rural New-Yorker, pitched in encampments, marching in mighty armies, but is also to be seen riding along some barren wind-whipped hillside or lonely lake shore. It is somber, dignified, with a protective strength about it.

It is one of those trees that have a personality, not graceful like the white birch, nor domestic like the maple, but a thing of the wild, a little aloof, serene, fearless, with a certain majesty, but the majesty of a strong man of the people rather than of courtly pieces.

That the pine is a favorite among trees is small cause for wonderment. It can be gentle, as a true knight should be, murmuring low words of consolation and comfort, it has about it something of gloomy romance and mystery, the spirit of moat and castle, in battle its war song rises high on the blast and its great body, assembling all its forces, struggles mightily with the enemy, the grim conflict showing wild against the storm clouds of the sky.

Meaning of "Layman"

The first part of the word "layman" is derived from the Greek "laikos," meaning "of or from the people," and "layman" is most generally applied to the people in general who are not members of the clergy; in other words, to members of the laity. Thus in various churches we have lay deacons, lay preachers, lay elders, lay readers, etc., persons who perform such church duties and continue with their outside occupations. In religious orders lay brothers and lay sisters are occupied chiefly with domestic or manual work. Apart from church usage, the term "layman" is applied to outsiders or non-experts in relation to some profession, art or branch of knowledge, especially with reference to law or medicine.

Discoverer of Eucalyptus

Sir Joseph Banks fitted out a vessel at his own expense and accompanied the famous Captain Cook on his first voyage around the world in 1768, and when they touched the shores of Australia (then called New Holland), Sir Joseph was the first man to see and describe the Eucalyptus which grow by the millions in California. He called them "Gum" trees because of the exudations of gum on the trunks and Gum trees they still remain to us. The Araucaria was first introduced from the Society Islands in the Pacific and named by him, while the same is true of the famous "Bird of Paradise," Strelitzia, which he introduced from South Africa and named in honor of his friend Queen Charlotte Sophia of Mecklenburg-Strelitz.

This was shown by the skeleton of a Stone Age man dug up at Notgrove long barrow, in the Cotswold hills, in the west of England. This Stone Age veteran showed extensive signs of osteoarthritis, indicating that when alive he was crippled with rheumatism.

Nile Lies in a Gorge

Through its entire course through the mountains of Abyssinia the Blue Nile runs between volcanic rock walls 5,000 to 6,000 feet high, there being no break in this depth sometimes for a distance of 50 miles. The river is impassable during the rainy season. The River Hawash, the second largest in Abyssinia, has no known outlet.

Never 39 Stars in Flag

There were never 39 stars in the flag. This is because the thirty-ninth, fortieth, forty-first, forty-second and forty-third states were all admitted in one year. North and South Dakota were admitted on the same day, November 2, 1889; Montana on November 8 and Washington on November 11 of the same year. The forty-third state, Idaho, was admitted July 3, 1890, so that on July 4, 1890, five stars were added.

St. Mark's Decorations

According to the ancient laws of Venice, every merchant trading in the East was required to bring back material for decorating St. Mark's, and every successful general or admiral returning from an Eastern campaign was expected to carry some offering for it. "Not one of the hundreds of columns and capitals within or without the church was originally built or constructed for St. Mark's," writes Arnold Lund in "Venice."

Former German Colonies

Germany has never owned or had a mandate on any part of Australia. Her acquisition of territory in Australasia began in 1884 when she annexed part of New Guinea, also the New Britain Archipelago. There was some indignation in Australia over this action, as in the previous year the Queensland government had attempted to appropriate this land but had been restrained by the British government, which assured them that no foreign power contemplated any interference in New Guinea. In 1885 Germany annexed the Marshall and Solomon Islands and in 1899 German Samoa and other islands. These constituted the German colonial empire in the southern Pacific, near Australia, up to 1914.

Surgical History

The first "Caesarian" section in America was performed successfully in 1794 by Dr. Jesse Bennett, of Staunton, Va., upon his own wife after another surgeon had declined to undertake it. There was no anaesthesia; the patient was held by two women upon an operating table made by placing boards across two barrels. For centuries "Caesarian" sections were performed only upon dead mothers—required by decree of Caesar, hence the name. Caesar himself was not a Caesarian delivered baby.

THIS MUST STOP!

The appalling loss of life and frightful injuries caused by reckless driving in Ontario must stop! Motorists have been requested to be courteous on the road, but the death toll still mounts at an alarming rate. Reckless drivers must be dealt with according to their deserts, and to the laws of this Province.

A reckless driver who causes death or injury is a criminal—just as much of a criminal as a thief; for reckless driving is illegal. Cutting in, passing on hills, excessive speed, driving slowly in the centre of the road, and all the other breaches of safe driving are to cease.

RECKLESS DRIVERS BEWARE!

Ontario has an internationally famous highway police force but they cannot be everywhere. Most accidents occur out of sight of the police. We therefore ask with all sincerity for the co-operation of public-spirited motorists to report to this Department instances of reckless driving. It is your duty to help check this wicked slaughter—deaths that could be avoided, and the maiming and crippling of healthy men, women and children.

Here is what to do!

When you see a motorist driving in a manner dangerous to the public, take his number, make a careful note of the actual time and place and when you reach your destination write to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, giving full details. We do not invite reports of minor infringements of the traffic laws; you are requested to use sound judgment. We will deal adequately with offenders.
